

Mitchell Hanberg (Leader)
James Ross Miskovich
Joseph Swanson
Michael Lee
Brandon Vickrey
Austin Rauschuber

Buggy's TV Guide Installation/Instruction Manual

Installation

In order to run Buggy's TV Guide, you will need to obtain the latest version of java (32 or 64 bit based upon your system). You can check if you have java installed by typing "java" into your terminal/cmd.exe.

You will also need the "BuggysTVGuide.jar" file.

Once you have both of the above, go into your terminal and traverse to the folder containing the jar file. Then enter the following command "java -jar BuggysTVGuide.jar". This should cause the application to open. If not, check your java installation for further issues.

Using Buggy's TV Guide

Once inside the application you should receive a main window. From there you can search for shows. In the search results, you can select a show from the search results by double clicking or pressing the "Details Button." From there you can add/remove a show from your list by clicking the Button on the show page. You can also double click on an actor to learn more about their role in that show.

On the main menu, double clicking on a show or episode in your list will bring you back to the show's page.

The export menu allows you to export to various formats listed in the menu, and the file menu allows you to save and load your list of shows for subsequent uses of the application (Please note: your shows list is not designed to autosave). You can also exit the application through the file menu.

Hopefully with all of this knowledge in hand you can keep up on all of the new episodes of your favorite TV shows with the help of Buggy's TV Guide!